Welcome to the second issue of the Taylor & Francis Group's Librarians' Newsletter. We are proud to continue to keep you updated with new developments and initiatives taking place at Taylor & Francis.

Branding - Changes to publishing imprint

From January 2005 Taylor & Francis will be publishing under just 2 imprints, Routledge (including Psychology Press), for all social science and humanities journals, and Taylor & Francis for all science, technical and medical journals.

The Routledge imprint has a long and distinguished history dating back to 1836, and established its academic credentials in the 20th century when, under Routledge and Kegan Paul, so many of the key thinkers of the time were published - Bertrand Russell, Levi-Strauss, Sigmund Freud, Carl Jung, Jean-Paul Sartre and Albert Einstein to name a few. Psychology Press remains as a sub imprint of Routledge. Please update your records accordingly.

Through a combination of organic growth and acquisitions Taylor & Francis have become one of the world's leading imprints for scientific books and journals. The name Taylor & Francis has for long been associated with a pre-eminent tradition of scholarly science publishing. The Taylor & Francis imprint has a long and distinguished tradition of publishing excellence dating back to 1798, and celebrates over two centuries of successful partnership with the international scientific research community.
