Routledge, the social & behavioral sciences and humanities division of Taylor & Francis, is dedicated to the dissemination of academic and professional information, utilizing skills and expertise honed since the company first began publishing learned journals in 1798. Today, we publish 1,600 scholarly journals in association with 460 societies and institutions.

Our publishing team is truly international. With a network of 20 global offices – including Philadelphia, Oxford, Melbourne, Beijing, New Delhi, Stockholm, Johannesburg and Singapore– we provide local support and expertise around the globe.

We have played a major role in the internationalization of research, publishing groundbreaking work across disciplines from scholars including Bertrand Russell, Claude Lévi-Strauss, Sigmund Freud, Carl Jung, Jean-Paul Sartre, Jacques Derrida, Michel Foucault, Herbert Marcuse, Karl Popper, Albert Einstein, Max Weber and Iris Murdoch.

Our journals portfolio covers the full range of research and clinical applications, as well as policy issues across a variety of mental health issues and settings.

We are proud to publish in partnership with some of the world’s leading associations in this area, including the International Society for Psychological Treatment of the Schizophrenias and other Psychoses (ISPS); the International Academy for Suicide Research (IASR); the Society for Clinical Child and Adolescent Psychology (APA Division 53); and the International Society for the Study of Trauma and Dissociation (ISSTD).

We have a proven track record of identifying trends in research and nurturing new journals such as Mental Health and Substance Use; the Journal of Mental Health Research in Intellectual Disabilities; and The Journal of Positive Psychology; as well as encouraging the development of mature and established titles, like Aging & Mental Health; Women & Therapy; and Psychiatry, Psychology and Law. Mindful of the influence of cultural background on mental health, our list encompasses titles that recognise this, such as the International Journal of Culture and Mental Health; Ethnicity & Health; Mental Health, Religion & Culture and Anthropology & Medicine; ensuring that we can offer a comprehensive, diverse and dynamic portfolio of mental health journals at the forefront of today’s rapidly moving research and practice environments.

The provision of new, innovative products and services, delivered at the cutting edge of technology, is central to Routledge’s publishing ethos. Routledge aims to build on its unrivalled books and journal presence, via its new, unified platform www.tandfonline.com.

Anxiety, Stress, & Coping

An International Journal

Official journal of the Stress and Anxiety Research Society

Included in the Thomson Reuters Social Sciences Citation Index®

Indexed in MEDLINE

Editors-in-Chief: Aleksandra Luszczynska, Warsaw School of Social Psychology, Poland and Nazanin Derakshani, Birkbeck University of London, UK

Volume 25, 5 issues per year

This journal provides a forum for scientific, theoretically important, and clinically significant research reports and conceptual contributions. It deals not only with the assessment of anxiety, stress, and coping, and with experimental and field studies on anxiety dimensions and stress and coping processes, but also with related topics such as the antecedents and consequences of stress and emotion. We also encourage submissions contributing to the understanding of the relationship between psychological and physiological processes, specific for stress and anxiety. Manuscripts should report novel findings that are of interest to an international readership. While the journal is open to a diversity of articles, it is primarily interested in well-designed, methodologically sound research reports, theoretical papers, and interpretative literature reviews or meta-analyses.

Mental Health, Religion & Culture
Editor-in-Chief: David B. Cooper, West Sussex, UK
Volume 5, 4 issues per year
Increased recognition of co-existing mental health and substance use issues over the past 20 years has led to a growing body of discussion and research into the efficacy of interventions, treatment, and service delivery. As knowledge and expertise advance, professionals at the forefront of the field need an effective and stimulating forum in which to share information, review strategies, and develop new concepts. www.tandf.co.uk/journals/mhsucc

Mental Health, Religion, & Culture provides an authoritative forum and a single point of reference for the growing number of professionals and academics working in the expanding field of mental health and religion. The journal publishes empirically-based work which explores the relationships between mental health and aspects of religion and culture, and discusses conceptual and philosophical aspects. Contributions are encouraged from a range of disciplines including: psychiatry, psychology, anthropology, sociology and other social sciences, philosophy, theology and religious studies, community and social work, counselling and pastoral work.

Psychology & Sexuality
Editors: Darren Langridge and Meg Barker both at Open University, UK
Volume 3, 3 issues per year
Psychology & Sexuality is an important journal which aims to fulfill the requirement for an international journal, publishing high-quality quantitative and qualitative psychological research on sexualities. Psychology & Sexuality advances knowledge and understanding of lesbian, gay, bisexual, trans, heterosexual and queer issues in psychology and allied disciplines. The journal adopts a broad understanding of psychology such that work that may traditionally be seen as outside the remit of psychology is included. Furthermore, the journal is progressive and radical with regard to current debates in critical psychology whilst also inclusive, publishing good quality quantitative research as well as more critical qualitative work.

Psychology: Psychological, Social and Integrative Approaches
Official Journal of the International Society for the Psychological Treatment of the Schizophrenias and other Psychoses
Editor: John Read, University of Auckland, New Zealand
Volume 5, 4 issues per year
Psychology: Psychological, Social and Integrative Approaches fills an important gap in mental health literature, namely research focused on the psychological treatments of psychosis (e.g. cognitive-behaviour therapy, psychodynamic therapy, family therapy etc.) and the psycho-social causes of psychosis (e.g. poverty, drug abuse, child abuse and neglect, distressed families, urban living, discrimination, rape, war combat etc.). The journal publishes papers on both quantitative research (e.g. rigorously designed outcome studies and epidemiological surveys) and qualitative research (e.g. case studies of therapy, first-person accounts of psychosis and experiences of people with psychosis in the mental health system), as well as papers focusing on conceptual and ethical issues.

Religion, Brain & Behavior
Published in association with the Institute for the Biocultural Study of Religion
Editors: Patrick McNamara, Boston University, USA, Richard Sosis, University of Connecticut, USA and Wesley J. Wildman, Boston University, USA
Volume 2, 2 issues per year
The aim of Religion, Brain & Behavior (RBB) is to provide a vehicle for the advancement of current biological approaches to understanding religion at every level from brain to behavior. RBB unites multiple disciplinary perspectives that share these interests. The journal seeks empirical and theoretical studies that reflect rigorous scientific standards and a sophisticated appreciation of the academic study of religion.
RBB welcomes contributions from a wide array of biological and related disciplines, including cognitive science, cognitive neuroscience, evolutionary psychology, social psychology, evolutionary anthropology, social neuroscience, psychology, genetics, demography, biotechnology, neuropsychology, physiology, development and aging, psychology, psychiatry, moral psychology, archaeology, mimesis, behavioral ecology, epidemiology, public health, cultural evolution, and religious studies. In summary, RBB considers high quality papers in any aspect of the brain-behavior nexus related to religion.
