

International Review of Law Computers and Technology

CALL FOR PAPERS

International Review of Law, Computers & Technology is an international review devoted to the study of both the principles and practices bearing on the interaction of computers, other new technologies, and the law. The rapid advances made by technology are radically changing the face of our society. New media now exist in areas such as the creation and the distribution of information and entertainment. They must still be governed by law but which laws are relevant, and which new laws need to be established?

Submission Process

Papers, which normally should not exceed 5,000 words including footnotes, should be sent electronically in Microsoft Word to the Managing Editor Dr Kenneth Russell at IntRevLCT@aol.com or, where indicated, to the Special Edition Guest Editor.

Stylistic suggestions

Layout

All submissions will be sent anonymously for the observations of referees. The first sheet should include only the title of the paper indicating content, name(s) of the author(s), academic and/or professional qualifications as commonly used by the author(s), main appointments, postal and email addresses.

An abstract of not more than 200 words, which should briefly indicate the overall argument should be provided beneath, along with 3 key words. All pages should be numbered. Proofs for checking will normally be sent to the corresponding author, unless otherwise indicated.

For more information on how to submit a paper, please visit:

www.tandf.co.uk/journals/cirl