Oxford Development Studies is a multidisciplinary academic journal aimed at the student, research and policy-making community, which provides a forum for rigorous and critical analysis of conventional theories and policy issues in all aspects of development, and aims to contribute to new approaches. It covers a number of disciplines related to development, including economics, history, politics, anthropology and sociology, and will publish quantitative papers as well as surveys of literature.

Oxford Development Studies publishes relevant articles on worldwide development issues which are of interest to an international audience. Submissions that fall within the journal's scope are welcomed.

All submissions should be made online at Oxford Development Studies' Manuscript Central Site:

<http://mc.manuscriptcentral.com/cods>

New users should first create an account. Once a user is logged onto the site, submissions should be made via the Author Centre. Authors should prepare and upload two versions of their manuscript. One should be a complete text; in the second, all document information identifying the author should be removed from files to allow them to be sent anonymously to referees. Authors will then be able to define the non-anonymous version as "File not for review" when uploading files.
