The editors of American Review of Canadian Studies invite the submission of articles in any area of Canadian Studies and are receptive to a wide range of methodologies; topical pieces and responses to articles published in previous issues will also be considered. Additionally, the editors commission book reviews as new titles come to their attention. A list of books available for review, updated quarterly, is available on the ACSUS website: www.acsus.org

ARCS is a refereed, multidisciplinary, quarterly journal published since 1971. The journal examines Canada and the Canadian point of view from an American perspective. Its articles explore Canada's arts, cultures, economics, politics, history, and society, recognizing Canada's distinctive position in the world. Most issues also contain reviews of recently published books across that same broad spectrum of topics - reviews that acquaint readers with current scholarship in the field.
