

Call for Papers

Global Economic Review

SPECIAL ISSUE ON GLOBAL IMBALANCES AND FINANCIAL STABILITY

Global Economic Review, a SSCI-listed international journal, is soliciting papers for a special issue on “Global Imbalances and Financial Stability” due to be published in December 2012. In the special issue, solicited papers will appear with a few invited papers by distinguished scholars. Papers addressing issues of global imbalances, financial stability, and exchange rate coordination, especially how these issues changed and are analyzed after the recent global financial crisis, are welcome. We accept a wide range of papers, including those analyzing the dynamics behind global imbalances, exchange rate coordination, or financial architecture to those presenting ways to dampen global imbalances or encourage financial stability. In this special issue, Global Economic Review particularly welcomes global imbalances and financial stability issues in the East Asian economic perspectives, but is not limited to them.

Contributing authors will be selected through a rigorous review of submitted abstracts. To be included in the review process, contributing authors should submit their long abstract (at least 5 pages) to the editorial office of GER through e-mail (ger@yonsei.ac.kr) by December 1, 2011. The notification of acceptance will be sent in December 2011. Once accepted, the final draft of the paper should be submitted through email (ger@yonsei.ac.kr) by June 2012. If you have any questions related to the special issue, feel free to contact the Editor at the email address listed above.

For further information about Global Economic Review, please visit the journal website at www.tandfonline.com/rger.

Sign up to receive Table of Contents alerts here.