WE NOW INVITE YOUR SUBMISSIONS

Health Psychology Review is a landmark publication – the first review journal in the important and growing discipline of health psychology. This new international forum, edited by a highly respected team, will provide a leading environment for review, theory, and conceptual development.

The journal particularly favors theory-based reviews of empirical contributions that afford integrative theoretical formulations of work in a given area of health psychology; and reviews that develop connections between areas of research within the general domain of health psychology as well as with other disciplines. Papers that consider the cross-cultural and cross-national relevance and appropriateness of theories and key concepts are also welcomed.
