

Call for Reviewers for Leisure Studies

The Editors of Leisure Studies would like to invite scholars involved in all aspects of leisure research to join their current pool of article referees.

For thirty years Leisure Studies has published articles of the highest standard and referees have played an essential part in the selection process to ensure that every article published meets this high standard. They do this through the feedback they give to authors and by helping editors reach decisions.

Referees for a particular paper are chosen for their expertise on the subject, referees are then asked to give constructive comments and help authors develop their paper and in turn advise editors on its suitability for publication. Referees should possess a number of attributes including: a high degree of objectivity; excellent communication skills; the ability to justify their comments/suggestions; the ability to comment on how a submitted paper can add to the existing body of knowledge and to show a willingness to learn.

If you are interested in being considered as an article referee for Leisure Studies and feel you can contribute to the advancement of knowledge in the study of leisure and its related fields, please send a brief copy of your CV (two pages maximum) and a letter outlining your areas of expertise/interest to:
