

Safundi:

The Journal of South African and American Studies

Editor: Andrew Offenburger, Yale University, USA

CALL FOR PAPERS

Safundi seeks to understand the United States and South Africa in relation to one another, and the journal, now published in print and online by Routledge, requests new contributions from scholars to appear in future volumes. The editorial board encourages submissions that analyze the United States and South Africa from an international, transnational, and/or comparative perspective. Safundi also publishes articles specifically addressing one country (or other regions), provided the research is of interest to an international audience.

Safundi is more than a journal; it is a dynamic community of international scholars, and a veritable storehouse of comparative and transnational scholarship. All articles are published via Routledge's normal distribution networks, and they are also promoted via Safundi.com. Safundi sends announcements of new issues to its 2,500 members throughout the world and cross-references its research in its online databases. Publishing with the journal thus gives authors increased exposure to an international, interdisciplinary community of scholars

Submission Details

Articles that Safundi publishes are academic in nature. Intelligent, exploratory essays are also welcomed. We encourage interdisciplinary perspectives on a wide range of topics. Past article titles and abstracts may be reviewed at <http://www.safundi.com/issues>.

Safundi prefers articles to have between 7,000 and 10,000 words, but articles of any length will be considered.

Please review the writer's guidelines at <http://www.safundi.com/submissions> and then submit your paper in either RTF or Microsoft Word DOC format to offenburger@safundi.com. Safundi evaluates papers using a blind peer-review process.
