

The Journal of PEASANT STUDIES

critical perspectives on rural politics and development

2012 Impact Factor: 5.805
1/55 (Planning and Development)
1/83 (Anthropology)

Greetings from the Journal of Peasant Studies (JPS)! Since January 2009, JPS has a new broad editorial orientation and policy:

It provokes and promotes critical thinking about social structures, institutions, actors and processes of change in and in relation to the rural world. It encourages inquiry into how agrarian power relations between classes and other social groups are created, understood, contested and transformed. The journal pays special attention to questions of 'agency' of marginalized groups in agrarian societies, particularly their autonomy and capacity to interpret – and change – their conditions.

We hope that JPS today will continue to be analytically groundbreaking and politically relevant, and also that it will continue to inspire those concerned about changing the conditions of the rural world.

We have recently published exciting and cutting-edge articles on global burning agrarian issues, as well as several special issues:

- 'Critical Perspectives in Agrarian Change and Peasant Studies' (2009)
- 'Biofuels, Land and Agrarian Change' guest edited by Phil McMichael and Ian Scoones (2010)
- 'New Frontiers of Land Control' guest edited by Nancy Peluso and Christian Lund (2011)
- 'Green Grabbing: a New Appropriation of Nature?' guest edited by James Fairhead, Melissa Leach & Ian Scoones (2012)
- 'The New Enclosures: Critical Perspectives on Corporate Land Deals' guest edited by Ben White, Wendy Wolford & Ruth Hall (2012)

JPS articles have become extremely useful and popular among scholars, policy practitioners and activists worldwide. The journal actively contributes to setting research agendas.

We do not want you to miss any of the exciting issues from now on, including a special issue on rural politics in China (2013), guest edited by Emily Yeh, Kevin O'Brien and Ye Jingzhong, and in January 2014, a 40th anniversary special double issue on key themes in agrarian studies including food politics and food sovereignty, edited by the JPS editorial team.

We are happy to let you know that Routledge have a special offer of radically reduced personal subscription rate at only US$50/year, printed edition only -- delivery charges included! (This is less than $10/copy for each issue since beginning in 2013 we will have 6 issues (in three print editions) per year).

To avail of the special offer for personal subscription, please email: subscriptions@tandf.co.uk or telephone: +44(0) 20 7017 5544. Simply advise them of this offer and your discount will be automatically applied.

Respectfully yours,

Saturnino ('Jun') M. Borras Jr.
JPS Editor-In-Chief
International Institute of Social Studies (ISS)
The Hague, Netherlands
jps.editorial@gmail.com

Visit the journal homepage at:
www.tandfonline.com/fjps

 Routledge
Taylor & Francis Group