Taylor & Francis is pleased to announce that all previous back issues of Alcheringa have now been digitalised and are now included on all institutional and online subscriptions, giving you access to over 30 years of world leading research.

Alcheringa: An Australasian Journal of Palaeontology is the official Journal of the Association of Australasian Palaeontologists and edited by Dr Stephen McLoughlin.

Alcheringa covers all aspects of palaeontology and its ramifications into the earth and biological sciences, including:

- Taxonomy
- Biostratigraphy
- Micropalaeontology
- Vertebrate palaeontology
- Palaeobotany
- Palynology
- Palaeobiology
- Palaeoanatomy
- Palaeoecology
- Biostratigraphy
- Biogeography
- Chronobiology
- Biogeochemistry
- Palaeontology

Review articles are welcome, and may be solicited from time to time. Thematic issues are also possible. Emphasis is placed on high quality and informative illustration, in both line drawings and photographs. Papers of general significance may receive preference over those of more local interest.
