

The Enloe Award

The International Feminist Journal of Politics, in conjunction with Taylor and Francis, is delighted to announce the inaugural Enloe Award. Named in honour of Cynthia Enloe's pioneering feminist research into international politics and political economy, and her considerable contribution to building a more inclusive feminist scholarly community, the Award will be given in recognition of exceptional quality in a paper submitted to IFjP by an emergent scholar.

It is anticipated that the Enloe Award will be announced annually, after an open competition judged by a committee of eminent feminist scholars drawn from the IFjP Board. Both postgraduate students nearing completion of their PhD thesis and postdoctoral scholars who are within five years of the award of their PhD at the time of the competition deadline will be eligible to enter. Papers should fall within the rubric of IFjP, which as a journal seeks to publish lively, original research at the intersection of international relations, politics and women's studies. They should also be no longer than 8000 words long, including notes, and conform to IFjP house style, details at www.tandf.co.uk/journals/authors/rfjpaauth.asp. The winning entry will be published in the journal as the Enloe Award Essay and the author given an honorarium (currently US$500) on publication.

The deadline for submissions for the Enloe Award 2010 is March 1st 2010. Please submit papers to ifjp@yorku.ca, marking them clearly as intended for consideration by the Enloe Award Committee.
