

FREE ONLINE ACCESS to a journal of your choice

During 2009 members of the National Communication Association can elect to receive access to the electronic version of one of the following titles published by Routledge, Taylor & Francis

Chinese Journal of Communication www.tandf.co.uk/journals/rcjc

The Chinese Journal of Communication is a new venture of scholarly publication aimed at elevating Chinese communication studies along theoretical, empirical, and methodological dimensions, while contributing to the understanding of media, information, and communication phenomena around the world.

Journal of Family Communication www.tandf.co.uk/journals/hjfc

The Journal of Family Communication publishes research on all aspects of communication in families, to include communication in family systems, communication in family relationships, and families managing communication with social systems such as mass media, education, health care, and law & policy.

Health Communication www.tandf.co.uk/journals/hhth

As an outlet for scholarly intercourse between medical and social sciences, this noteworthy journal seeks to improve practical communication between caregivers and patients and between institutions and the public.

Feminist Media Studies www.tandf.co.uk/journals/rfms

Feminist Media Studies provides a transdisciplinary, transnational forum for researchers pursuing feminist approaches to the field of media and communication studies, with attention to the historical, philosophical, cultural, social, political, and economic dimensions and analysis of sites including print and electronic media, film and the arts, and new media technologies.

Activate your online access today by contacting: jennifer.roberts@tandf.co.uk
State the name of the journal, your membership status and quote
'NCA Member Free Access' in the subject bar of the email.