

Philosophical Explorations

An International Journal for the Philosophy of Mind and Action

ESSAY PRIZE 2013

Deadline for submissions: August 30th, 2012

The journal Philosophical Explorations has inaugurated an annual essay prize for philosophers in the early stages of their career. Papers are invited on all aspects of the philosophy of mind and action. They should not be under consideration for publication elsewhere, and should not be submitted to any other journal until the outcome of the competition is known.

The Prize

Publication of the winning essay in Philosophical Explorations as the opening article of the September 2013 issue (volume 16, issue 3).

The winning essay will be promoted on the website of the journal.

Cash prize of £250.

Jury

All submitted papers that qualify (see conditions) will be evaluated by the journal's editorial board. The top 5 papers will be nominated for the Prize and will be judged by a jury consisting of three members of the journal's advisory board. The jury will evaluate the papers on the originality of the paper, the quality of the argumentation, conceptual clarity, and overall readability.

The decision of the jury will be final. There is only one prize per year and the jury reserves the right to award no prize at all if submitted material is not of an appropriate standard.

Conditions

Philosophers who have earned their doctorate no more than five years prior to submission are invited to submit (The winner will be required to document that this is the case).

Papers should be on the topic of the journal, i.e. the philosophy of mind and action broadly understood (see general rules regarding submissions for Philosophical Explorations in the journal or on our website: www.tandfonline.com/rpex).

Word limit: 3000-9000 words, including notes and references.
