Increased 2015 Impact Factor for Journal of Sex Research

Taylor & Francis and The Journal of Sex Research, proudly announce the journal’s 2015 Impact Factor of 2.862! The journal also received an increased 5-Year Impact Factor of 3.274.* The Journal of Sex Research, the official journal of The Society for the Scientific Study of Sexuality, is now ranked 2nd out of 93 in the category of Social Sciences, Interdisciplinary and 24th out of 121 in Psychology, Clinical.

Editor-in-Chief Cynthia A. Graham says, “I am thrilled at the news that both the 2-year and 5-year Impact Factors for our journal have increased! This is a reflection of much hard work by the team of Associate Editors for the journal and the quality research that we aim to publish.”

The Journal of Sex Research is a scholarly journal devoted to the dissemination of articles relevant to the variety of disciplines involved in the scientific study of sexuality. The journal publishes papers on a range of topics that reflect varied methodological approaches and also offers the option to publish cutting-edge articles via Open Access.

To celebrate the new Impact Factor, The Journal of Sex Research would like to offer FREE ACCESS to a selection of recent articles chosen by the Editor-in-Chief. You can access these articles for a limited time by clicking on the links below.
