

LibSite Upgrade goes live!

Taylor & Francis is pleased to announce that we have upgraded LibSite, our dedicated site for librarians! The site's improved navigation and wealth of new features makes it even easier for librarians to find out about the latest news and resources available to them.

A website dedicated solely to librarians, LibSite provides access to key information at a glance: Navigating the site has been transformed to offer vital information at librarians' fingertips with new resources and sections introduced.

Jennifer McMillan, Head of Library Marketing & Communications comments, 'We have endeavoured to create a website that allows librarians to access clear, succinct information on all of T&F Group's range of products as well as providing resources to librarians and their library users to get the most out of our products. We hope that you like the results and are open to ideas about how we can further develop this site to meet librarians' needs!'

Don't miss out on the chance to win a Kindle!

To celebrate the upgrade of LibSite, we are offering librarians the chance to win a Kindle. To enter, simply sign up for our newsletter by 30th April 2011 and receive automatic entry into our prize draw: www.tandf.co.uk/libsite/news/
